How many sizes of balalaika are there?

Balalaika

Balalaika is a Russian stringed musical instrument of the lute family. It was developed in the 18th century in Russia and Central Asia. The balalaika is made in six sizes, from piccolo to double bass, and has a flat back and a triangular table, that tapers to the fretted neck. There is a small, round sound hole in the narrow end of the belly. The three strings, usually gut, are end hitched and strung over a violin-like, or pressure, bridge. The instrument was used in folk music but was also employed in large balalaika orchestras in the 20th century.

What do you know about künefe?

Künefe

Künefe is a cheese pastry soaked in sweet, sugar-based syrup. A semi-soft cheese such as Urfa peyniri is used in the filling. In making the künefe, the kadayıf is not rolled around the cheese; instead, cheese is put in between two layers of wiry kadayıf. The recipe belongs to the southeast regions of Anatolia. Kadayıf is produced commercially in small plants like güllaç. Tissue thin layers of rolled pastry are shredded finely. It is sold in "Pastry Shops" everywhere.

Do you know where the Wooden Tserkvas are in Ukraine?

Wooden Tserkvas of the Carpathian Region in Ukraine

It is UNESCO’s World Heritage Site. Situated on the eastern fringe of Central Europe, the transnational property numbers a selection of sixteen tserkvas (churches) between Poland and Ukraine. They were built of horizontal wooden logs between the 16th and 19th centuries by communities of Orthodox and Greek Catholic faiths. The tserkvas bear testimony to a distinct building tradition rooted in Orthodox ecclesiastic design blended with elements of local tradition, and symbolic references to their communities’ cosmogony. The tserkvas are built on a tri-partite plan surmounted by open quadrilateral or octagonal domes and cupolas. Integral to tserkvas are interior polychrome decorations, and other historic furnishings. Important elements of some tserkvas include wooden bell towers, churchyards, gatehouses and graveyards.

About the ICBSS: The International Centre for Black Sea Studies (ICBSS) was founded in 1998 as a non-profit organisation. It has since fulfilled a dual function. On the one hand, it is an independent research and training institution focusing on the wider Black Sea region. On the other hand, it is a related body of the Organisation of the Black Sea Economic Cooperation (BSEC) and serves as its acknowledged think-tank. Thus, the ICBSS pursues applied, policy-oriented research, promotes knowledge on the Black Sea region both within and outside its boundaries, and offers policy advice with the aim to foster multilateral cooperation among the BSEC member states as well as with their international partners.
