I am a student of Panteion University of Social and Political Sciences (Athens) in the department of International and European Studies.

I speak English, German, French and Greek.

During 2011 I had an internship in ICBSS. It was my first job and I am very glad for this. This internship taught me a lot of things about research and prepared me for the next jobs. So, I would definitely advise you to apply for the next one.

- Since 2010 until now I am a researcher of IIR (Institute of International Relations of Panteion University) on the geopolitical area of Europe – Balkans – Turkey and USA.
  - From March 2012 I am doing also a research on the relations between Russia and Turkey supervised by one of my professors and at the same time I am preparing articles with international news for a site constructed by the professor. The internship in ICBSS helped me very much on this, because I had already done a research on Russia's relations on ICBSS (as well as Russia is one of the main countries of the Black Sea Region) and I find my current research much more easier due to this fact.

- Generally, my studies focus on many domains such as Security, International Relations, Europe, Environment and Energy and many others.
  - However, I would like to deal with International Relations because I believe that is the most important science, especially nowadays that

- International relations is the science which studies the roles of states and the relations between states and organisations (like NGOs).
  - It is both an academic and public policy field, and can be either positive or normative as it both seeks to analyze as well as formulate the foreign policy of particular states. It is often considered a branch of political science.
  - Aspects of international relations have been studied for thousands of years, since the time of Thucydides, but IR became a separate and definable discipline in the early 20th century.<sup>[1]</sup>

- Apart from political science, IR draws upon such diverse fields as economics, history, international law, philosophy, geography, social work, sociology, anthropology, criminology, psychology, gender studies, and cultural studies / culturology.
  - It involves a diverse range of issues including but not limited to: globalization, state sovereignty, international security, ecological sustainability, nuclear proliferation, nationalism, economic development, global finance, terrorism, organized crime, human security, foreign interventionism and human rights.

- Personally, I have attended lessons in my university that deal with all these topics and I have learned such interested things.
  - I like my field of studies and I hope to have the opportunity to work on this. In my opinion is the job of the future , as well as each state will never stop considering its future, its security and its relations with the other states.. “Arab spring” is the most recent example.

Thank you very much for your attention!!!
