Sociocultural Impacts of COVID 19

General Observations

- The global wealth of traditions, culture and diversity are among the principal motivations for travel
- The impact of COVID-19 on tourism places further pressure on heritage conservation in the cultural sector, as well as on the cultural and social fabric of communities, particularly indigenous people and ethnic groups
- Many intangible cultural heritage practices such as traditional festivals and gatherings have also been halted or postponed, with important consequences for the social and cultural lives of communities everywhere
- Cities have traditionally played a major role in cultural tourism. They were the first, but also among the most to be affected by the pandemic, that resulted in restrictions and shutdowns in urban tourism. However, being hubs of innovation and creativity, they were the first allowing their inhabitants and people around the world to embrace culture in alternative ways
- On the other hand, tourism in rural areas offers important opportunities for recovery as travellers seek less crowds, open-air experiences and local cultures

UNWTO-Instagram Partnership

Objectives:

- To help destinations and business harness the power of digital and visual storytelling to reach new audiences and return to growth;
- To provide everyone from governments and tourism bodies to local businesses and tour guides tips and recommendations on how they can use the power of digital to reconnect with travellers around the world — or right in their local communities
- To illustrate how the sector is ready to welcome tourists back safely and responsibly;
- To explore the best ways to encourage renewed local travel, while raising environmental awareness

2021 has been declared as the International Year of Creative Economy for Sustainable Development by Resolution A/RES/74/198 (December 2019).

High-Level Event: Culture and Sustainable Development:
"Building back better: towards a more resilient and impactful culture sector throughout COVID-19 and The Decade of Action", (21 May 2021)

-The event highlighted best practices and policy adaptations needed to ensure the cultural and creative industries contribution to COVID-19 relief and recovery strategies and to fully recognize culture's transformational potential as an underutilized accelerator for implementing the SDGs.
